Whatever, therefore, assists in that the vacancy will be filled by some one throwing light on the history and character from Poking.—Cuck. of the volume ought to be deeply interesting; and we are happy to be able to lay before our. readers a few facts on the subject, for the anthenticity of which the source from which we derive them warrants us to vouch. The book, a translation of which has been recently published under the title " Death Blow to (lorrupt Dectrines," was written about 1862 y Tung-Tse-Shing, then treasurer (Fantai) the province of Huneh. He was a native of Hunan (the native province of Tseng-kwo-fan). Silk therefore was in favor of buyers. These Thereafter Taug beld some office in Szechuen, douth, and though reprieved sank under his renot as yet been able to find ou. The neculation of which Taux had been guilty > must certainly have been of a very glaring and aggravated kind; otherwise it might well have been counterbalanced by what from a Guinese point of view must have been regarded as the political value of his literary effort. For his book from the date of its publication was ciroulated very freely for several years, in the provinces of Human and Hupeb, being sent to the District Magistrates for distribution gratis. At the interend of 1865 M. Dabry, then French Consulat Hankow, had his attention drawn to the book, and owing to his remonstrance proclamations were issued by the authorities at Wuchang prohibiting its circulation but as the then secretary of one of the District Magistrates has naively remarked: "We received the proclamations and did not post them." During this year the book has again been very generally circulated in Kiangse and Hunan, and, as we learn from the Teng-chow, Missionaries, throughout the northern provinces this was especially marked just before the destruc-tion of the Roman Catholic chapels at Wacking and Foschow-fue in Krangse.

Various editions of the book are in circulation, some of them punctuated, so as to render them comprehensible even to the coolie who knows his letters. In all cases foreigners and native Christians have difficulty in procuring, or even in seeing, the book; as those to whom is given are intructed to prevent, its being seen by Christians. Latterly the distribution of the book has been carried on with such zeal n Hunan and Kiangsi that their discretion has been less Enarded; and a few copies have been rocured at Shway-chow-foo, Waching, Kintiang foo and other places. In Hunan they have been used by recruiting officers to induce soldiers to enlist. It is also noteworthy that in the editions circulated in the central provinces | beautifully wooded island to the mainland, the writer professes to be of Yang ching (the where a peculiarly distinct caho is found.

There was a Mr. Joseph Parkyns MacMahon cheong to Oboy-chap. century, who made some small name as a writer. I think he was a professor of languages by vocation. His father was Sir Claudius MacMuhon, an Irish knight, who rained himself and his family by taking up the cause of Charles Edward, in 1745; and had to get out of the country as quickly as possible. In return for his livelty, the Pretender made him Lord Monaghan a title which, it need hardly be said, does not appear in the Red Book. Sir Public Accountants and General Commission Chudius was married to a daughter of another Agents. Jacobite, Sir William Parkyna, who was executed in 1696 for a plot against King William. The father of the present Marshal was himse fa Marshal, peer of France, and a personal friend of Charles X. He might very well have been the son of Mr. Joseph Parkyns MacMahon; which case the General would be only French "in descent by his mother's side.

THE LAWS OF WAR. A law is worthless, observes the Law Journal unicas there is independent authority and power to enforce its observance by punishing its transgression. Thus the laws of war are roully of no practical utility, since the conqueror will do what he likes. There is the question of the France-tireurs. The Prussians refuse to recoghise them as soldiers, and claim a right to shoot them it taken with arms in their hands. Yet as these men are an enrolled force, and wear some sort of uniform, the Prussians are. wrong according to the lows of war. They say, indeed, that the peasuntry put on a fancy uniform and take it off at pleasure, that the Franc-tireur is a volunteer soldier in the morn ing and a civilian in the afternoon. It so, the quiduct of the French is unlawful Perhaps if there were an authoritative exposition of the haw there would be an end to scenes that ute latvi a partner in our firm from the 1st of checking to humanity. The whole matter lies | Outober, 1869. in a nutshell. An invading force ought not to harm non-combatants, and non-combatants ought not to harm the invader. To insure this the invader is justified, by the laws of war, in shooting all persons found with arms, unless they are enrolled soldiers and in uniform. It is now reported that he Englishman who was ondeavouring to escape from Paris in a balloos has been captured, put into prison, and tried by court martial. We need hardly remark that It is lawful to break a blockade either ou sea or land, capture and confiscation of prop rty being the only penalties. If the story is true, the Englishman, in merely attempting to escape, has been guilty of no offence, which Agent under the style or firm of could justify his trial by court martial. But it may be otherwise if he be proved to be engaged and I have authorized Mr. F. E. HEYDEN and in any way in the service of a belligerent. MISCELLANEOUS
